 THE ALEXANDER
WEDDINGS REINTERPRETED.

The Alexander opened in January of 2013 in the downtown CityWay neighborhood. Developed and owned by Indianapolis-based Buckingham Companies and designed by the noted architectural firm, Gensler, it features 209 guest rooms, all specially designed as relaxing retreats for work and rest.

The hotel is named after Alexander Ralston, an engineer and architect who designed the city's urban master plan in 1820. The Alexander was built above the 99th plat of land in the blueprint for the city of Indianapolis, hence the name for the second-floor mixology lounge, Plat 99. The various meeting rooms are named for Indianapolis neighborhoods, for example Fountain Square, Irish Hill, Pogue's Run and more.

The Alexander also ties in local culture by featuring artwork curated by the Indianapolis Museum of Art. It is the only hotel in North America that is curated by an accredited art museum. Every art piece ties into the culture of Indiana. The hotel has 14 commissioned installations and 25 other original works spread throughout the public areas. You'll even find art in the restrooms and graffiti art in the parking garage. The Alexander's newest exhibit includes a first floor art Gallery, curated by the Indianapolis Museum of Contemporary Art.

The CityWay neighborhood strives for sustainability in every aspect. The hotel has been awarded LEED Silver certification by the U.S. Green Building Council and has been designed, constructed, maintained and operated for improved environmental and human health performance. The Alexander was recently voted one of the top 10 hotels in the Midwest by Condé Nast Traveler.

The Alexander Wedding Packages

The Alexander was built to inspire guests with the power of art, but nothing is more powerful than love.
